Would you like to see more active transportation opportunities for people of all ages and abilities in Kingston and area?

Active transportation (AT) is any form of human-powered travel such as walking or wheeling, to get from one place to another. Our definition includes using public transit and e-bikes.

Founded in 2008, the Kingston Coalition for Active Transportation (KCAT) is a registered not-for-profit organization dedicated to increasing active travel in Kingston and area. We are a diverse group of community members from a variety of ages, ethnicities, and backgrounds, including education, research, urban planning, health, and recreation.

We work collaboratively with partners to enhance opportunities for walking, wheeling, and using transit, primarily through education, advocacy, and policy. KCAT encourages the development and maintenance of environments that are conducive to AT, with attention to sidewalks, cycling routes, signage, and the transit system. We hope for Kingston to be safe, accessible, efficient, affordable, connected, attractive, and equitable for all ages and throughout the year. Visit our website at <https://kcat.ca/> to learn more about us.

We are looking for new members to continue this work. You can get involved in several ways – participate on a committee, help with committee projects, volunteer at a KCAT booth, run for a board position, or just add your name to our membership list. See <https://kcat.ca/get-involved/> for ways you can get involved. We also appreciate donations to help us continue our work.

You may contact our general email, info@kcat.ca, or any of the following KCAT members for more information about joining, meetings, and general background:
